

Corporate Overview

How do we do it?

With a diverse customer base, variable demand and extensive physical inventories, it is critical that CenturyVallen uses the correct tools to ensure that customer and stakeholder expectations are met.

We've invested extensively in our Trend ERP system, and we actively promote inventory best practices to support client demands. In addition, our dedicated procurement professionals ensure that our business is run in the most efficient and effective manner possible.

A combination of automated ordering, planning and fixed model tools are employed to ensure that our supply commitments are met—these tools are critical when you consider our next day delivery commitment.

Interactive accounting, order entry, purchasing and customer inventory modules along with business-to-business e-commerce tools are just some of the value added options we provide to our customers. Whether you require VMI, EDI or simply the best customer service, we've got you covered.

More than Just Great Products

In addition to our extensive supply business, CenturyVallen offers comprehensive commodity related service and maintenance programs, professional application assistance and product related training.

We've invested in significant resources to ensure that mechanical, safety and janitorial equipment are not only available for purchase, but are readily serviceable by qualified personnel. Safety, facility maintenance and fluid power/transmission specialists, in conjunction with our sales staff, provide comprehensive management and maintenance solutions. Our operational service centers, located across Canada, are equipped to support our variety of service programs.

Our Sales Team has considerable experience in the areas of product application, use and maintenance. With the help of our suppliers and an extensive educational library, we provide support for the many products we sell. CenturyVallen is a truly integrated MRO supplier.

Saving You Money

Due to complex and variable purchase requirements, your supply chain inevitably experiences waste, unwanted redundancy and, in the end, unnecessary costs. In most cases, MRO items are worth less than their related administrative/overhead costs. Multiple manufactures, multiple product codes and multiple transactions compound already expensive procurement costs and drive inefficiencies.

What if you could consolidate all of your MRO purchases; what if you could streamline your invoicing activities, freight expenses, product queries and contract management efforts? Does your business struggle with stock returns, inventory obsolescence and product carrying costs? Are you forced to manage thousands of constantly changing product codes? CenturyVallen can help!

Our global presence and supply chain acumen allow us to optimize both purchasing and distribution activities. Century Vallen built its business on inventory management and customer service. Spend less time on inventory control, and invest more time doing what you do best.

We've saved millions for thousands....and we can prove it!
